The ICCFR TRUST is an international Trust supporting the advancement and worldwide dissemination of knowledge about family and couple relationships, and to activities promoting their well-being – in particular the annual international conferences organised by the International Commission on Couple and Family Relations ICCFR.

The Trust’s aim is to provide financial support in order to:

- extend and enrich the programme of activities of ICCFR
- provide scholarships for people skilled in this field from emerging nations, especially amongst the younger generations, that enable them to benefit from these events
- develop the ICCFR website as a globally accessible tool for exchange and communications in this field
